DEDICATION

The Class of 1994 would like to dedicate our yearbook to a very special and talented individual.

Mr. Donald Souza has been with us since 1975. He has been one of the driving forces which helped form one of the most successful Automotive Technical Programs in the State. His knowledge, experience and dedication will be missed by all.

Mr. Donald Souza

The Class of 1994 dedicates our yearbook to a very special individual, Mr. Richard Arruda. Throughout his 19 years of teaching in our House & Mill Department he has shared his time and knowledge with all of us.

He was instrumental in setting up the House & Mill Department and for years coordinated The Old Colony Ski Club.

In his years with us he has contributed many projects for the school and community which will stand for many years as a tribute to his skills.

Mr. Richard Arruda

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Paula Simmons

From English Teacher to Guidance Counselor to Coordinator of Vocational and Academic Affairs, Mrs. Simmons had students' interests in mind. Her dedication to her career and Old Colony enabled her to help many students. Whether it was voluntarily helping students with their studies after school, fighting for a student to be allowed to remain at O.C. or listening to student concerns and joys in her office, Mrs. Simmons was there.

Mrs. Simmons was blessed with the knack of scolding while still letting the person know he or she was loved.

We will miss Mrs. Simmons, her loud ways and quiet touch. Each of us, however, has a memory of her and thereby she lives on.

In Lillehammer 1994 at the XVII Winter Olympic Games there were many winners. Johann Olav Koss was a triple gold medal winner in speed skating. Koss, after his win in the 1500 announced that he was giving his 225,000-Krone bonus to Olympic Aid, he also asked each Norwegian to contribute 10 Kroner for each gold medal won by the country's athletes in the Games.

Tommy Moe of Giwood, Alaska, flashed across the finish line at the men's downhill, a microscopic .04 before his second. The 23-year-old redeemed his career after years of unfilled promises, he won the gold and glory for the US.

In the fourth time going to the Olympics Dan Jansen finally won the gold. He finished at 1:12.43, beating out everyone in the 1,000 meters speed skating.

On January 6, 1994, the nation was shocked to learn that Olympic medalist, Nancy Kerrigan had been attacked after practice in Detroit. An unidentified man appeared and clubbed Kerrigan in the knee. Later allegations of the incident pointed the finger at rival/teammate Tonya Harding and her ex-husband, Jeff Gillooly. As the Olympics drew closer, the whole world became interested in seeing the outcome of the women's figure skating competition. After Kerrigan won the silver medal and Harding placed only 6th, Harding admitted to knowing about the attack and withholding information. She was removed from all Olympic skating competitions and had to serve numerous hours of service. Both Kerrigan and Harding were offered contracts for their stories.

The show started off as an upstart, but the time they finished handing out the prime time Emmy awards on Sept. 29, 1993, "Seinfeld" was a member of the sitcom Old Boys Club. The NBC program took home three trophies, making it one of the night's two biggest winners, along with "Picket Fences."

One of the biggest stories of the 1993-94 basketball season occurred before the first pre-season exhibition game. Michael Jordan, the world's best basketball player and one of its most famous athletes, announced his retirement. His departure, which Jordan announced at a news conference on October 6, 1993, stripped the league of its most recognizable name and robbed it of a breathtaking acrobat who led the NBA in scoring the last seven years.

The Dallas Cowboys won their second straight National Football League championship and the Buffalo Bills earned a sadder spot in sports history by losing their fourth straight Super Bowl. Dallas defeated the Bills 30-13 on Sunday, January 30, 1994, scoring 24 unanswered points in the second half after trailing 13-6 at half-time. Emmitt Smith, the game's Most Valuable Player, led the way for Dallas, rushing for 132 yards and scoring two touchdowns. Smith, the league's MVP in the regular season, added the Super Bowl MVP award to his collection.

Steven Spielberg produced yet another big box office hit. Shindler's List shows the true horror behind the Holocaust. The movie, which ran over three hours, was one of the most stirring of all time.

Many schools and parents were against allowing high school students to view it, stating that it was too graphic. The film, which centered around Oscar Schindler, a Nazi officer who managed to save thousands of Jews and their children from the death camps, showed the Holocaust in true form. When it came time for the awards, Shindler's List won Best Picture and was nominated for a slew of others.

It was one of the most dramatic home runs in the long history of the World Series. Joe Carter of the Toronto Blue Jays stepped to the plate in the ninth inning of the sixth game of the series, with two runners on base and the score 6-5 in favor of the Philadelphia Phillies. Carter's Blue Jays lead the series, three games to two. And after one swing of his bat, the game was over and the Jays had won their second straight series. The right fielder circled the bases, arms outstretched over his head, and slapped palms with the third base coach Nick Leyva as the crowd in Toronto's Skydome stood and roared with glee.

President Clinton's point man on health care reform in 1993 was his wife, First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton. When Mrs. Clinton appeared before Congress to implore its members to work with the administration to overhaul the health care system, she got a movie star's reception. But the talk quickly turned to business. Representative Pete Stark, a California Democrat, said he favored expanding Medicare to cover all Americans. He told Mrs. Clinton that his mother fears that she would be worse off under Clinton's reform plan, even though it calls for new Medicare coverage for prescription drugs.

When Sheikh Omar-Rahman was charged on August 25, 1993, with commanding "a war of urban terrorism" in New York City, he was already one of the most unpopular figures in the United States. The indictment accused him of being the mastermind of a plot to blow up the World Trade Center, which had been bombed on February 26, as well as numerous other targets in New York that were never hit, including February 26, as well as numerous other targets in New York that were never hit, including the United Nations building and the Lincoln Tunnel. The blind cleric, in exile from his native Egypt, denounced the bombing and denied involvement in the alleged conspiracy. But he surrendered following a tense standoff outside a Brooklyn mosque. Several of his followers also were charged.

Arrested Development won the MTV Video Music Award for best rap video, "Everyday People," and the Grammy Award for "newcomer of the year." The hip-hop group also won some attention with a message to black Americans: spend some time and money expressing your African heritage. The group known for the hits "Fennessee" and "Mr. Wendal" also cited Clark Atlanta University's "Black Wednesday." Each Wednesday, students wear clothing bought from black-owned stores and make purchases only at black-owned businesses.

At the 10th Annual MTV Video Music Awards on September 2, 1993, at Universal City, CA, Nirvana's "In Bloom" won the trophy for best alternative video. Showing up to accept such an award might have seemed like a bit of a sellout for an avant garde rock group, but Nirvana showed it still had at least one bad boy. Just months after receiving this award, lead singer Kurt Cobain was hospitalized and was in a coma due to a drug overdose. He pulled out of the coma after a few weeks and began to recover. In April 1994, the glow and pressure of stardom became too much and Cobain took his own life. The 27-year-old left his young daughter, wife, band members, and close friends wondering why someone so successful would commit suicide.

Russia, one of the world's great powers, experienced political upheaval in 1993 more typical of a Third World nation. When President Boris Yeltsin disbanded the legislature September 21, many of its hard-liners barricaded themselves into the parliament building, or "White House," in Moscow. President Alexander Rutskoi and others tried to wrest power from Yeltsin in an attempted coup. But, following Yeltsin's orders, tanks and troops flushed out the defiant lawmakers, many of them old-line Communists opposed to Yeltsin's attempts to move the nation toward a free market economy. The world was stunned by the sight of fire raging uncontrolled inside the stately parliament building. When the smoke cleared the rebellion was crushed, and its leaders, including Speaker Ruslan Khasbultayev and former Security Minister Viktor Barannikov, were in jail. A commission was formed to create a new legislative framework, and elections for a parliament were scheduled.

The civil war in what was once Yugoslavia moved through its second year at terrible human cost: as many as 200,000 people were dead or missing, including 10 United Nations relief workers who had died by October. The 18-month-old civil war began in 1992 when Serbs rebelled over a vote by the republic's Muslims and Croats to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia and form two separate governments. Croatia and Muslim-dominated Bosnia-Herzegovina initially allied against the more powerful Serbs, but their alliance dissolved amidst bitter turf battles between Croats and Muslims in the second half of 1993. Much of the attention in the barbaric war centered on Sarajevo, the long-suffering Bosnian capital under siege by the Serbs. But life in other communities was even harder.

Reggie Lewis died Tuesday, July 27, 1993, playing basketball casually. He had collapsed earlier in April in a Boston Celtic game. He left behind his wife 2½ months pregnant and a son. Reggie was well liked as a Celtics co-captain and as a caring person.

CURRENT EVENTS

Kimberly Clarica Aiken, Miss South Carolina, became one of the youngest women to win the Miss America Pageant. Aiken, who bested 49 women to win the 1994 title in Atlantic City on Sept. 18, 1993, called the honor "very overwhelming for me." Aiken said she liked to wear the rhinestone crown — unlike her predecessor, Leanza Cornett — and immediately announced plans to spend the year working to help the homeless.

On a busy December evening the 5:33 p.m. commuter train from Manhattan to Hicksville on Long Island, N.Y., turned into a death ride for many passengers. Colin Ferguson stood up and began walking down the aisle with a 9mm ruger pistol aiming and shooting at innocent people. The rampage lasted 3 minutes, it left 5 dead and 19 injured.

Twenty-six fires that swept Southern California in the fall of 1993 left four people dead and caused at least $1 billion in damage. Wild fires destroyed 1,150 homes, burned across 200,000 acres and injured nearly 200 people in Southern California in a matter of weeks. Adding to the horror, authorities said that 19 fires were set by arsonists.

Herve' Villechais died early Sept. 4, 1993. He committed suicide by a gun shot to the chest. The reasons were because of dwarfism and poor health. Herve' was known for his role in Fantasy Island.

John Candy died early morning on March 5, 1994, due to heart disease and weight and smoking. He left behind his wife and two children ages 9 and 14, and was loved by friends and adored by many as a big star in many movie roles.

After a lifetime of lies, sexual and psychological abuse and deception, Lyle and Erik Menendez told their story after brutally murdering their parents. Their trial, which lasted 21 weeks, was one of the most bizarre in history. Both brothers felt their lives were in danger so they decided to strike first. These murders have brought about a growing concern. If people keep believing them they too will be able to come up with some story to back their actions and state that it was the victim who started it so long ago.

An Amtrak train hurtled off a bridge into an inky bayou in Saraland, Alabama, early in the morning on Sept. 22, 1993, sending its passengers into a nightmare of fire. It was the deadliest wreck in Amtrak's history.

At 4:31 a.m. on Monday, January 17, 1994, an earthquake of 6.6 magnitude struck Southern California, claiming 61 lives and leaving damage that may total $30 billion. Five interstate highways, including the state's major north-south route, and three state highways, were closed at several points, crippling transportation.

Raymond Burr died Sept. 4, 1993 of kidney cancer. He was known for his starring role in the Perry Mason series.

Pope John Paul II used some of the harshest rhetoric of his 15-year papacy to decry abortion and euthanasia during a four-day trip to the United States in August, 1993. On the last day of his visit to Denver, with Vice President Al Gore standing nearby, the Pope denounced the "culture of death." "The culture of life means respect for nature and protection of God's work of creation," John Paul said in a farewell address at Stapleton International Airport that was attended by Gore, a supporter of the abortion rights. "In a special way, it means respect for human life from the first moment of conception until its natural end."

It was the biggest, wettest story of the summer. The floods that washed across the Midwest may have been the worst in American history, and they captured the concern of people across the nation. The great flood was the story that most interested Americans in the summer of 1993, with nearly two of three telling pollsters that they followed the story "very closely" — on a par with attention paid in years past to the Persian Gulf War.

Across the Northeast, the Midwest and large parts of the South, the extreme cold of January 1994 brought an end to the daily routine. Arctic air with chills up to 74 below zero swept across the eastern United States in the wake of the blizzard that dumped enough snow to paralyze states. At least 92 deaths have been blamed on the barrage of cold and snow. Many of these victims were killed on icy roads or had heart attacks shoveling snow, while others froze to death. Tens of thousands of homeless people sought protection at shelters, which were filled to capacity in many areas.

In a year filled with horrifying news photos from battlefields around the globe, one photo of human struggle brought a smile: Associated Press photographer Paul Sakuma's shot of a little boy's joust with a huge sumo wrestler. It happened before a sumo tournament in San Jose, CA, on June 5, 1993, that attracted the world's best. The competitors included Salevaa Atisanoa, a 576-pound Hawaiian who goes by the sumo name Konishiki and is known in Japan as "Meat Bomb."

The world was drawn to Somalia in 1992 by photographs of starving children. It was almost driven away the following year by photographs of fighting adults. The latter pictures — notably one of a captured American serviceman being dragged through the streets of the capital, Mogadishu — symbolized the difficulty a 33-country United Nations force had coping with a country that had descended into feudalism. Mogadishu was a city divided, with a northern sector held by warlord Ali Mahdi Mohamed, and the south by a rival Mohamed Farah Aidid. Aidid and Ali Mahdi had united to overthrow dictator Mohamed Siad Barre, whom they forced into exile in 1991. But their ensuing contest for power led to a full-scale war over Mogadishu that killed 350,000 people in fighting and exacerbated a famine.

River Phoenix who died Oct. 31, 1993 of a drug overdose was well known for roles in Stand By Me and My Own Private Idaho. He left behind his parents, 3 sisters, and 1 brother.

Arthur Ashe died February 1993 of AIDS, a result of a blood transfusion. Ashe was a great tennis star and felt something needed to be done about racial problems world wide.

FACULTY

To the Class of 1994

On behalf of the Old Colony family, it is my privilege to extend our congratulations to the Class of 1994. We trust that you found the past four years both educationally rewarding and enjoyable.

You leave us to enter the world armed with an education which includes technical preparation in your chosen field. Today's world requires continual educational growth for you to achieve success in your career and to attain your lofty goals. Your graduation therefore is merely a benchmark in your education not its culmination.

The philosopher Plato said many years ago . . . "The direction in which education starts a man will determine his future life." We trust we have pointed you in the right direction and that with your determination, desire, and drive you will be successful and have a life filled with happiness and good health.

Thank you for your part in sustaining the Old Colony tradition and all you have added to our growth and improvement. It was our pleasure having you as a member of our student body.

Mr. David J. Ferreira

SPORTS

The 1993 Varsity Football Team finished the season with a 2 and 8 loss record. Tri-captains were Anthony Lanzoni, Joseph Orzechowski and Daryl Degowin. The Cougars played a very difficult schedule based on three of their opponents being participants in superbowls at the end of the season. The team played with enthusiasm, always gave an effort and displayed good sportsmanship throughout the season. Seniors will be missed and we wish them all well.

The Junior Varsity Team posted a 5 and 2 record. Look for the younger players to have an impact next year. Congratulations goes out to all the young men who continue to display "Cougars Pride."

THE PLAY "EDDIE"

Seated: Matt Collins, Katie Paska, Rick Bertrand. Standing: Jon Bradford.

This year Old Colony students got a lesson in real life when an improvisational acting company called IMP-ACT brought a play called "Eddie" to the school.

The play was based on the true story of a Rhode Island teenager who dies of alcohol poisoning and asphyxiation, and except for one professional, all the actors were Old Colony students who spent a grand total of one afternoon practicing for the play.

Directed by Tom Haynes, the improvisational play also featured singer and keyboardist Debra Mann, whose wide-ranging voice bore more than a slight resemblance to folk singer Joni Mitchell's.

The first scene of the play was a wake for Eddie La Riviere, 16, who drowned in his own vomit, alone in the backseat of a car after a party. Eddie was played by professional actor Matt Collins, who is 21 and an alcoholic who had only been dry for about eight months.

He said he always knew he had a drinking problem but thought he could straighten it out on his own. He even made an attempt after his best friend died in a car accident.

The play showed the events leading up to and following Eddie's death in 1977.
