As you know, Al had difficulty with his mental health for a couple of years. The amazing thing about it though, was he was always willing to help other people who were struggling too. Al was always helping, if it was his grandma in her garden, the neighbor shoveling snow, a stranger holding a door open or even friends and people he met while getting his own help. Al was always helping.

Requirement: Write an essay on how you have helped someone or how someone has helped you that has made an impact on your life.
